WILLIAM HALL HIGH SCHOOL
WEST HARTFORD, CONN

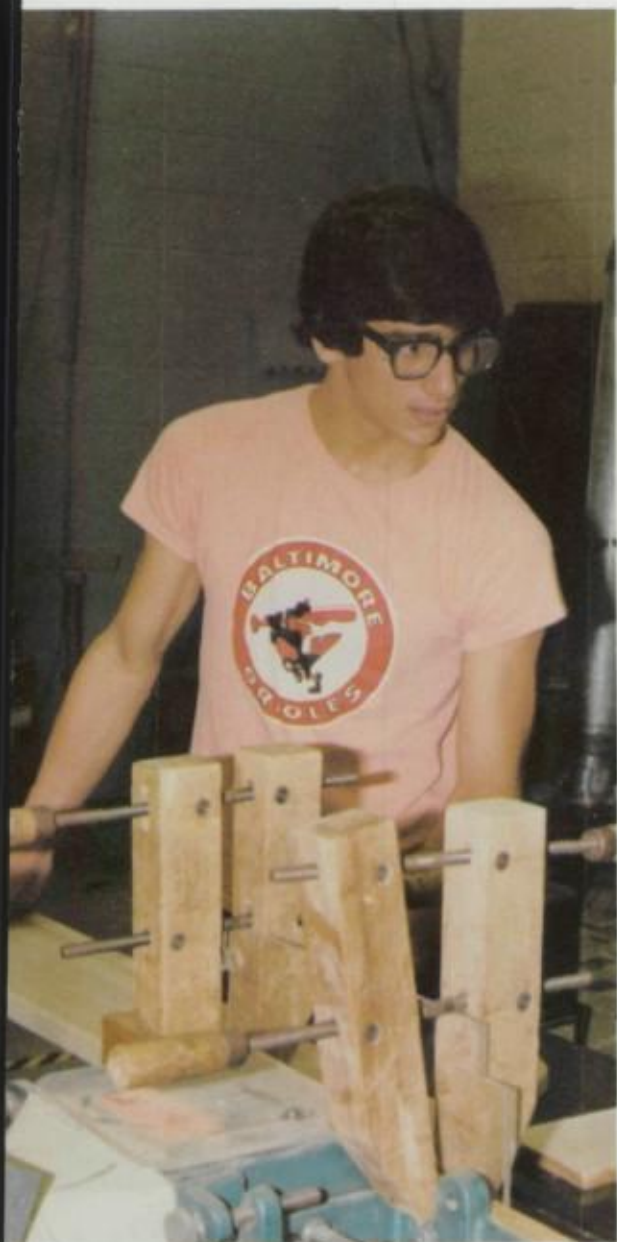

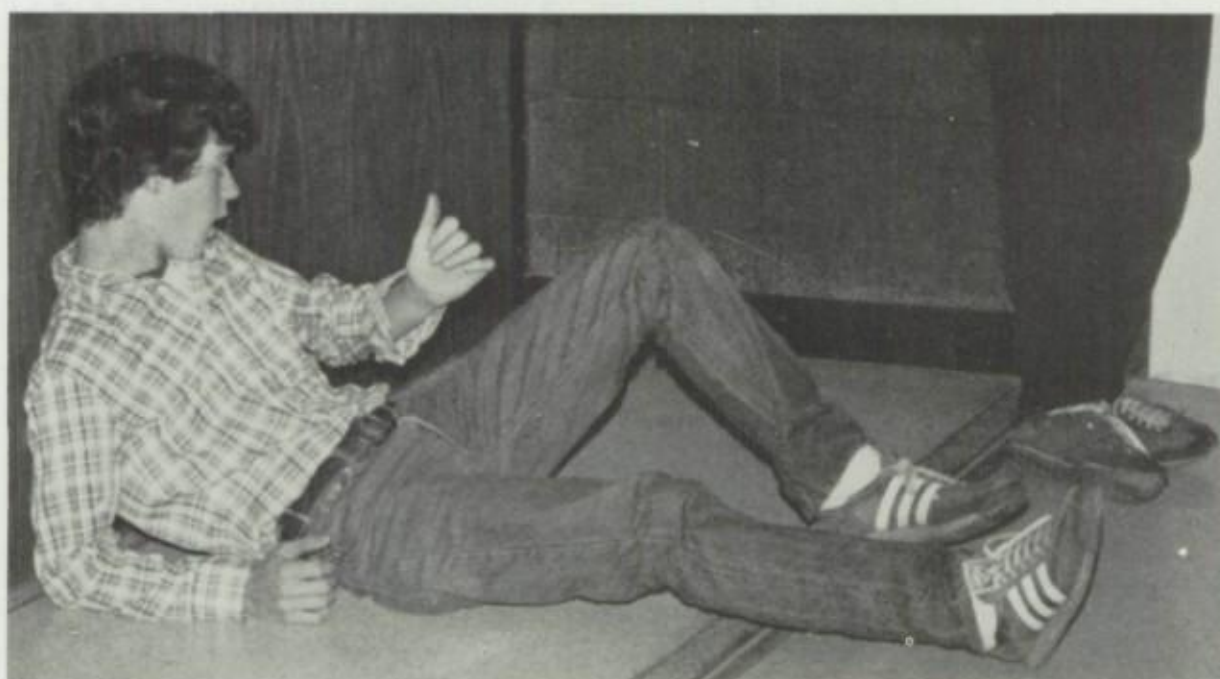

POINT

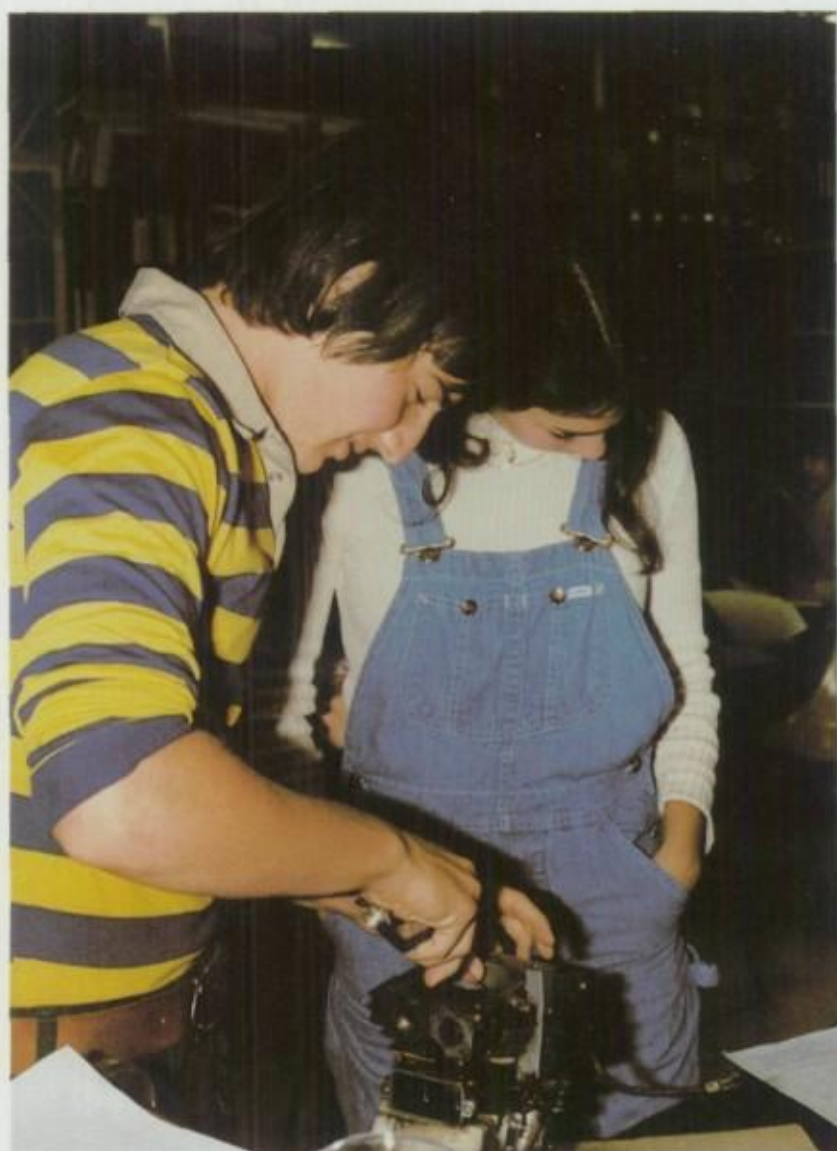

When the class of 1980 came to Hall, we were confused and frightened sophomores. Slowly we acquired a more relaxed and confident air, and grew into the seniors who now leave the school. In tenth grade, we settled into the routine of high school and began to amble down the corridors, passing by friends and strolling into classes. We continued to wander the same hallways until this year, when we turned the corner and ran into a whole new set of problems. They seemed overwhelming, but now that the college and employment race is over, we can look back and smile.

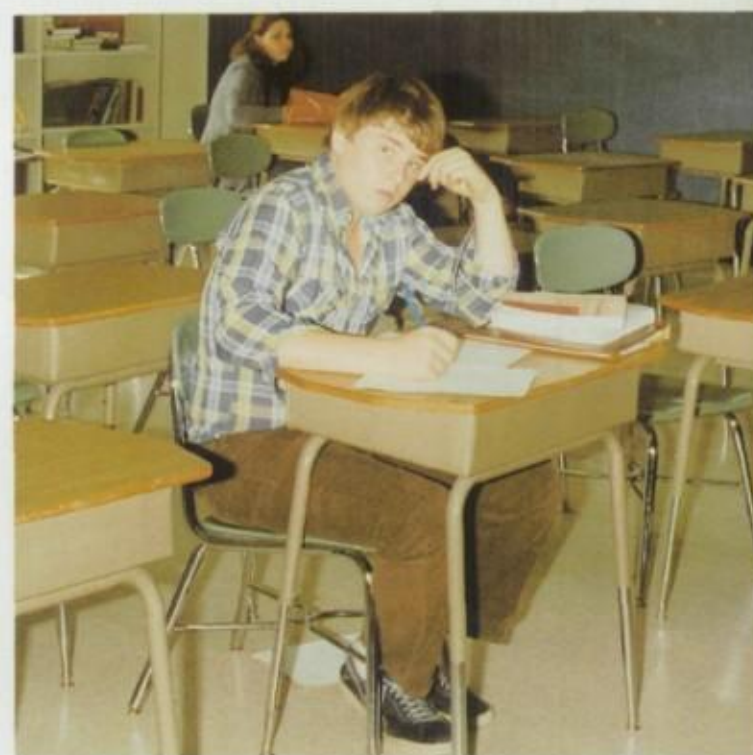

NG POINT

Though we have all spent some part of our high school years studying books and cramming for tests, 1980 was marked by a new onslaught of papers, exams, and homework. The pressure became intense in our senior year, as industrious students struggled to improve their final grades. We made last-ditch efforts to compile sound high school records and establish respectable reputations. However, despite our hectic academic schedules, we managed to live normal, happy teenage lives.

NING POINT

A ball spins down the field, spurring Hall on to another victory. Runners round the corner, and speed to the finish line, establishing Hall as the winner. Hall sports records exceeded their usual high standards as the three seasons of 1980 were filled with winning teams and outstanding individuals. From hell week to Hall-Conard, football to tennis, Hall athletes improved greatly, and, through dedication and skill, endured infrequent defeat, more often than not basking in glorious victory.

TURNING POINT

The improved sports teams at Hall were not only a result of well-developed skill and great dedication, but were also due to increased spirit. In 1980, spirit swelled and rocked the school with enthusiastic cries. Energetic students supported the royal blue and white with big crowds at numerous games. Seldom was a Hall crowd less "rowdy" than an opposing school, and it was uncommon for cheerleaders to be outshouted. Because participation and spirit increased, the over-all outlook of the school, as well as performances of sports teams, was strengthened.

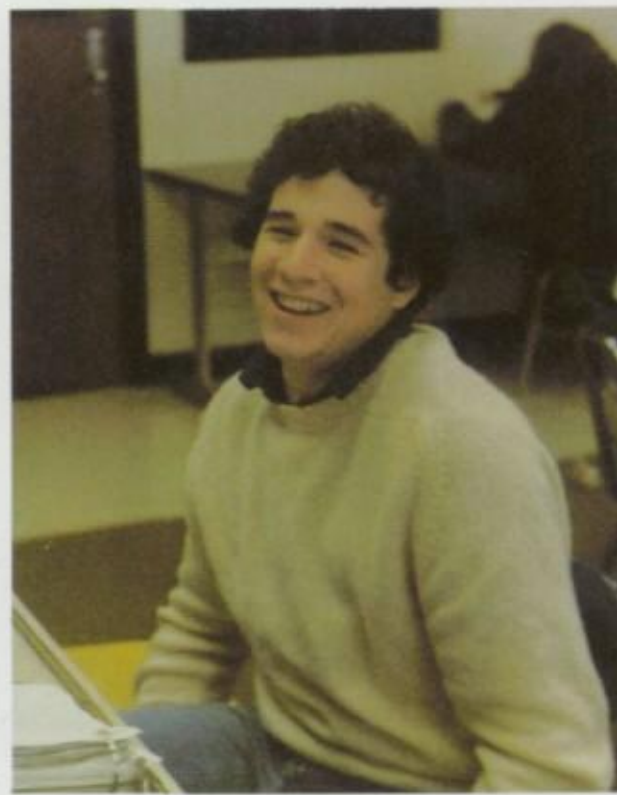

TURNING POINT

We came from two different places and separated into our familiar junior high school groups. As the years progressed, we slowly came together, and the old barriers were dissolved. We gradually became unified as the class of 1980. This was our last year, but our best year. We discovered at last that more than a building, more than a collection of teachers, it is the students who make the school: We are Hall High!

The Debate Club, a newly formed organization at Hall, is for students interested in the beginning techniques of debating. At our meetings, fundamentals of debating are developed and students are encouraged to become involved in active participation in debate on current issues of interest. Some elements involved are the preparation of cases by detailed study of a subject, the preparation of constructional speeches, and the development of public speaking skills.

MEDICAL CAREERS CLUB- The Medical Careers Club consists of students who are interested in gaining an understanding of some aspects of health care. In the past, the group has toured local hospitals, including Newington's Children's and the UCONN Medical Center in Farmington. In addition to these tours, club members have taken a course in Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and have listened to various speakers.

ASK-The alternative search for knowledge Program is a different approach to learning for juniors and seniors. The group meets for a few hours each day with a team of staff members. It is comprised of two teachers, Madeline Handler, James Solomon, two guidance counselors, Pat Zilliox and Nathan Koppel.

ASK offers a highly structured, individualized, and personal academic atmosphere for students who need or desire such a learning environment. Students earn academic credit within the ASK class during the morning, then elect other classes or programs offered by Hall for the remainder of the school day.

ACADEMICS

At some point in the course of a day, a given student can usually be found at one of the many resource centers at Hall. Whether gathering additional knowledge or catching up on the latest news, students use the library, career center, and math resource center to go beyond the classroom, to work independently or on a one-to-one basis with a teacher. There is always someone available in these rooms to help you with a particular problem, to insist that you keep your voice down, or to ask you for your identification.

Are you a cretin craving culture? A philistine pursuing philosophies or past phenomena? If you also happen to attend Hall High, you're in luck, for Humanities has become the rage here. In a society becoming increasingly career-oriented, Humanities courses were facing possible extinction. Yet here at Hall, the necessity for two Humanities classes indicates a growing desire for worldly knowledge.

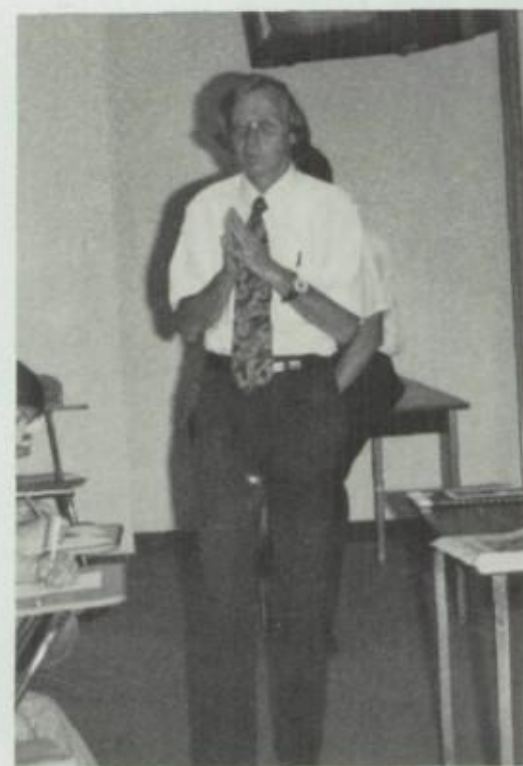

Just what are the Humanities? Taught by the austere yet whimsical duo of Trecker and Lyons, the Humanities encompass the history, art, music, and literature of different cultures and periods.

So what do they do in Humanities? When strolling by C102 one might snatch strains of Bach, Beethoven, or Brahms. He might also witness a play enactment or a slide show comparable to a grand tour of the Louvre itself.

So, if you're not a groupie of Gainsborough or Goethe, and if you think that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing", take Humanities and you'll be safe.

Chips,

For students who wish to develop an imaginative project or learn skills which will help them in day-to-day living, the Industrial Arts and Home Economics classes at Hall offer the perfect background. Students' culinary activities range from frying an egg to concocting a gourmet dinner, while in shop they can learn everything from hammering a nail to building a piece of furniture. It is not uncommon for students passing through the halls to hungrily sniff the aromas drifting from kitchens or close their ears to the racket emanating from the workshops, while the students inside are getting a unique education with lifelong practical applications.

Aside from standard courses and dreary requirements, Hall High offers its students a wide range of electives. It is in these courses that students can pursue their individual interests and branch out to discover new fields. Always urged to take advantage of opportunities, Hall students usually comply and are often faced with the decision of which courses to drop so that the infernal computer can arrange their schedules. Among the many electives offered at Hall are the courses in drama, music and art. Whether a student wants to be in the spotlight on stage, weave melodies with his voice or instrument, or create beautiful things with his hands, the opportunities are there. The only limits are the students' time and imagination.

The school store has existed since 1967 as a facility of the Marketing and Distrubuting Education classes.

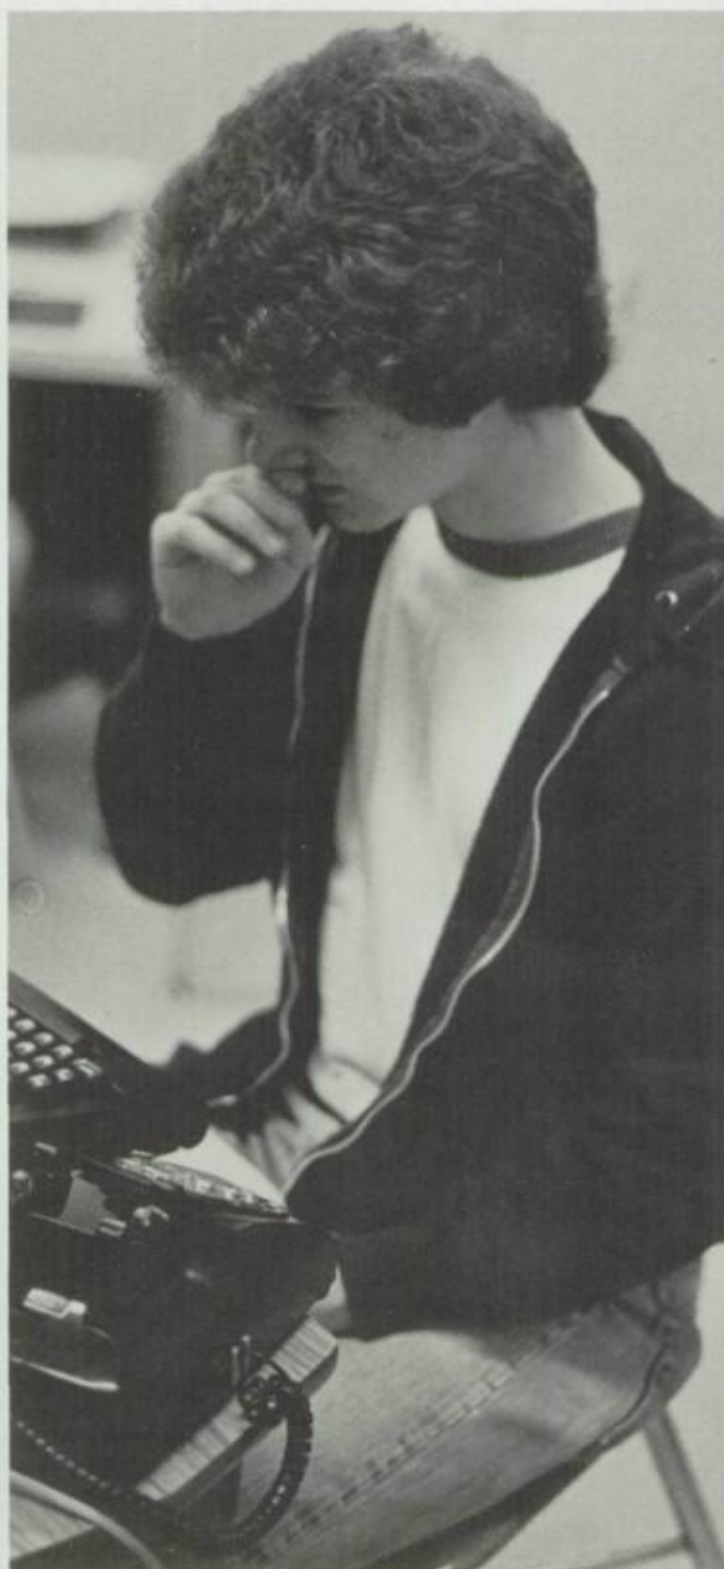

Earnings are deposited in the DECA treasury. The store yields a yearly profit of approximately three hundred dollars. The money is used to reduce the dues which DECA organization must pay annually to the Federal government.

Business reaches its peak during the months of September and January, the beginnings of the new semesters. Aside from an occassional pillage, serious problems seldom arise. Items found in the store range from candy to notebooks.

In order to broaden his knowledge of the world around him, each student usually takes at least one science: chemistry, biology, physics, or oceanography. Wary of the challenge of a science class, students are soon put at ease by the faculty of teachers who make up this department.

One aspect of science that makes students feel right at home is the Plant and Animal Room. This room, covered with foliage and housing a wide variety of animals, is a major concern for many students. They have made it their business to care for the animals while learning from them. This room also adds a certain flavor and aroma to the whole science wing.

The study of science at Hall is a memorable experience for every student, whether he has taken a single course or packed his curriculum full of animals, atoms, and alternating current.

Thirty Seniors lead football team to 6-4 record

FOOTBALL

The Hall High football team finished up its season with a 6-4 record in a league which proved to be much stronger than expected. The Warriors, who at one point during midseason had a 5-1 record and a tie for first place, were led by co-captains Steve Giuliano and Jeff McLucas, both of whom were varsity starters in their junior year.

Giuliano, the middle guard, and linebacker Bill Shepherd were team leaders in tackles with 110 and 114 respectively. They were aided by Tackles Kevin Jones and Gordon Jackson, the two strongmen on the Hall defense. Defensive ends Brian McGowan (the team leader in quarterback sacks), Mike Gordon, and Kevin O'Brien were very successful in stopping the outside run and putting pressure on the QB. Linebacker Ray Coladonato filled in whatever gaps were left in the front line. Ray Burke and Paul Campanelli pulled up the corners of the defensive backfield. Burke, with three interceptions, was always a threat to opposing passers, while Campy blocked a field goal and two extra points in crucial situations. Tom LeClair, Tom Tyler, and Ross Lichter covered the deep zones with great skill.

Quarterback McLucas was blessed this season with six excellent receivers who enabled him to set several passing records. McLucas, a competent passer in his own right, set school records for most completions (83), most TD passes, (7), and most yards passing (1678). Dan Sudol, his premier receiver, set Hall records in receptions (38) and TD catches (6). This earned him an all-CCIL first team distinction. The other receivers were wingbacks Jim Amenta and Dan Lohneiss, split end Greg Radding, and tight ends Jim Flattery and Glen Grobard. This receiving corps proved to be one of the best head coach Frank Robinson has ever had. Tailback John O'Connor led all Hall rushers with over 1000 yards on the season. Jeff Coy and John Vitale shared the fullback chores as well as the kicking duties. Vitale's punting was voted tops in the league and Coy's extra points figured prominently in several games. All the runners can thank the offensive linemen for some huge holes through which to run. The line, although small in size, used its quickness to beat opposing clubs. Paul Hilli, Andrius Banevicius, Tom Murray and junior Rich Kane fought for the two tackle spots, while Pete D'Aquilla, Rick Haylon, and Sean Barrett all helped out at guard.

Two senior centers, Jim D'Aquilla and Jon Borden filled out the middle of the line. Robinson points to this depth in every position as one of the strongest parts of the 1979 team.

Coach Robinson believes that these players should be proud to have played on this team. "I may be disappointed in the record," he says, "but I'm not disappointed in the team."

Coaches Robinson and DeCoursey conferring with players

The field hockey team had a commendable record this year. They ended the season with an 8-4-2 record, came in 2nd in the C.C.I.L. and 9th in the state. Only 10 goals were scored against the team thanks to an excellent defense consisting of links, Janet RisCassi, a senior, Kate Donovan, a senior, Shelley Clymer, a sophomore, thrusters Anna Jonsson, a senior, and either Colleen Cain or Mary Haggerty, both sophomores. They are all backed up by senior sweeper, Marie Callahan and junior goalie Dawn Nelson, who had an excellent season with 8 shutouts. The offense was very reliable consisting of seniors Nancy Eells and Juliet Hastings, and juniors Carol Ladd and Kim McDonagh. The offense pulled through to win in many tough situations.

The team, led by captains Nancy Eells and Anna Jonsson, had much spirit and confidence, and displayed excellent sportsmanship. Next year will hopefully be another exciting season with a fine group returning full of anxious players ready for competition. Till then, Peeg-Ya

Soccer Cinderella Season Surprises CCIL

Hall High soccer was the surprise team in the CCIL in 1979. Despite forecasts for a dismal season, Hall started with ten consecutive wins before bowing to Simsbury 1-0. The success of the team was a result of both fine individual efforts and solid team play. While junior Yuri Fischman received most of the attention for his record breaking 41 goal season, many others contributed to this team effort. The consistently fine defensive play of Don Bassette, Jim Foley and Jon Richman combined with the remarkable goaltending of Brian Meany kept the goals against average to less than one a game. In the mid-field, captains Jim Merrick and Rob Martin showed Martin along with Rick Laporte why they were three of the best at this key position. Up front, captain Pat Dunn provided the offensive (and acrobatic) spark for the squad. Finishing with an impressive 12-2-1 record, second in the CCIL, Hall was edged out of the State tournament in a tough 100 minute loss to E. O. Smith, 1-0. The true character of the team surfaced when it was honored by the State officials as the team with the best sportsmanship. While soccer could not boast either a league or a state title, few will deny that it provided some of the most thrilling action of the year.

The girls' swim team was a team that could not be beat. Of course, they had a couple of close calls, but always finished on top.

Led by senior co-captains Cathy Sebolt and Cathy Sheehy, this team captured first places in most of the events. Freshmen Betsy McClure and Susan Sebolt and junior Cheryl Starkie took many firsts, but it was the seniors who guided the team spiritually and physically.

Cathy Sebolt virtually owned the backstroke events. Karen Irvin always came through in the freestyle sprints. Divers Patti Lampugnale and Pat McCarthy constantly contributed points in their event. And there was Cathy Sheehy in the I.M., Eileen Moran in the butterfly, distance freestyler Marci Epstein, and freestyler Johanne Bach.

This group of girls was always eager to help the swimmers who were just starting out, and there was no question that they overflowed with spirit.

What a way to cap off a spectacular season by crushing Conard 103-69. In front of a crowd of over 1500, Hall outswam, outcheered, and outclassed Conard.

It is hoped that all of the seniors will continue with their swimming careers in college and they deserve the best of luck. As for the future of the girls' swim team, it looks very bright. With the return of the talented freshman, sophomores, and juniors, and the addition of some incoming freshmen next year, this girls' team should continue to be a team to reckon with.

BOYS' SWIMMING

The Hall boys' swim team, despite uncertainty at the beginning of the season, had a fine 9-3 overall and 7-1 league record in the 1979-80 season. With practically their entire backstroking corps, and several important sprinters and divers graduating in 1979, coach John McClure and his Warriors were questioning the swimmers chances for this season. However, the year, which had several inspiring victories, including wins of 102-69 over Manchester, 89-82 versus Windham, and 104-68 against Conard, saw the Warriors grab second place in the C.C.I.L. and do well in their Class L tournament.

The natadores started off the season with four impressive victories in a row. Anchoring the team throughout the year were senior Andy Epstein in the 200 yards Individual Medley and the 500 freestyle, co-captain Adam Wolfson in the 50 freestyle and breaststroke, and co-captain John Berthoud in the 200 and 500 freestyle events. Senior Simeon Schindelman became a fine breaststroker and Dan Lohneiss remained as one of the league's top divers.

BOYS' SWIMMING

A very balanced junior squad aided the Warrior cause this year. Butterflyers Steve "Ollie" Oliver and Bob Levitt, versatile Mark Rosenberg, backstroker Jim Kavitsky, and newcomer Bruce Press were among the top performers. Among the sophomores and freshmen, Andy Epstein, who broke both the Hall and C.C.I.L. records in the 500 yards freestyle, was outstanding. Other noteworthy Warriors were freestyler Danny Morris, diver Hugh Schweitzer, backstrokers Pat Moran and Charlie Berthoud, and breaststroker Jon Grey.

After their fast start, mid-January saw the Warriors drop two difficult meets, to two talented opponents, Wethersfield and Newington. The close loss to Wethersfield, the 1978-79 C.C.I.L. champions, cost Hall the '79-'80 title.

Oddly, in one of the state's richest towns, the swimmers were this season, and will continue to be, without a pool to call their own. Hall had to rely on sparse hours at the town's outdated facility, Cornerstone, affectionately called "the Stone" by the swimmers. With no plans in sight for a pool, the three underclasses must look forward to practices at odd hours which this year included 6:30 on Saturday mornings.

Hall was hoping to unseat Wethersfield in the C.C.I.L. meet, however, snow caused the cancellation of this nine team championship meet. Qualifying for the Class L tournament were Marty Greene, Adam Wolfson, John Berthoud, and Danny Lohneiss. Qualifying for the first time this year were Simeon Schindelman, Steve Oliver, Andy Epstein and Danny Morris.

VOLLEYBALL

Hall's volleyball team had a very unexpected season this year. After beginning with a young team and no returning lettermen coach Nate Koppel built the team up to a eleven and seven record. The Spikers had only expected a five hundred season so their record and participation in the State Semi-Finals was outstanding. This season there were only three seniors on the team so next years team should prove to be exceptionally good.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Although the basketball team's record was only 7-13, 5-13 in the CCIL, it can be considered as a rebuilding season. Rookie coach-alumni John Nelson had to be pleased with the play of junior captain Carl McKinney and senior standout Jimmy Amenta. McKinney's play early helped the Warriors overcome the first of two four-game losing streaks. He popped in a season-high 31 points in a season-opening, morale-raising victory over non-league foe Newington. Amenta's consistent scoring and floor play was a valuable asset to the squad.

Nelson's biggest surprise had to be the performance of dominating senior center Bryan Hill. Hill was a bench warmer at the season's outset, but as the season progressed, the imposing 6'6" center responded with a solid front-court effort. Three-year players Greg Radding, Jeff Fort and sophomore Tim Walsh all played key roles in the Warriors seventh-place finish.

The high point of the season was a scintillating 69-65 victory over cross-town rival Conard at mid-season. Hall exploded to a twenty point halftime bulge and held off a furious Chieftain rally. Jim Amenta's best game of the year keyed the victory. At one point during the season, Hall was only one game out of a playoff position but tough losses against leaders Simsbury, Manchester and Windham cost Hall a playoff spot. With some talented underclassmen gaining valuable experience, Coach Nelson must be optimistic about the team's fortune in the upcoming season.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

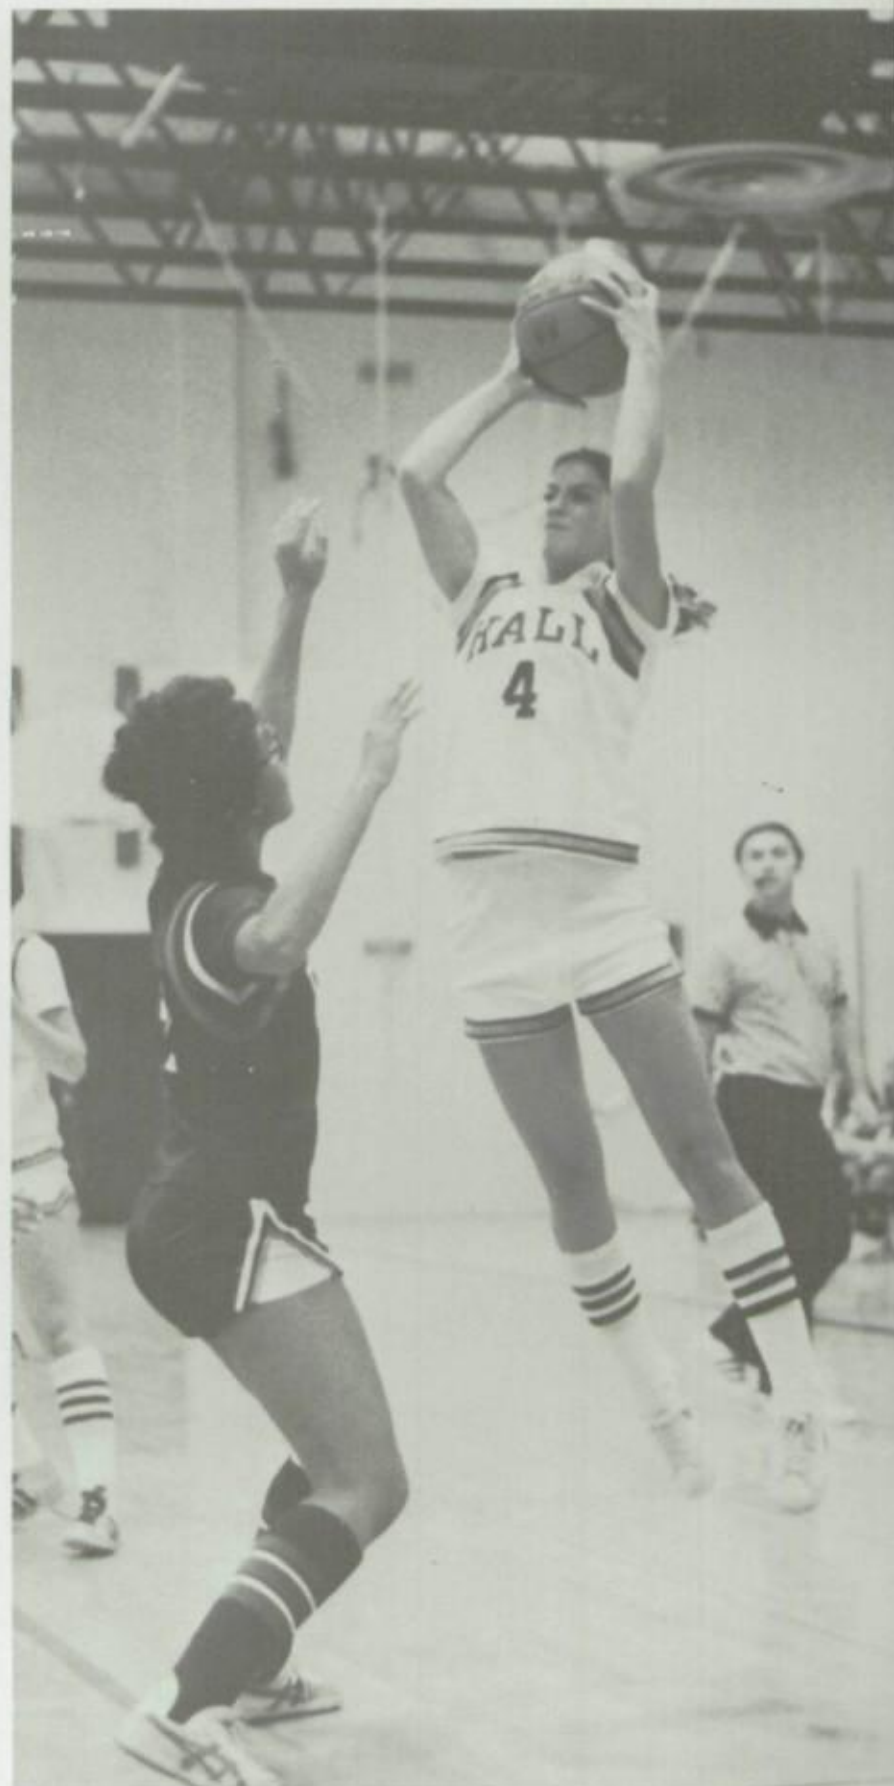

Hall's girls basketball compiled a surprising 13-5 record with the help of several outstanding underclassmen.

With the loss of the entire starting team to graduation, a rebuilding season was foreseen. Due to the superlative coaching of Kathleen Walling, the lady warriors proved to be a tough team for anyone in the league.

The inexperience of the team didn't seem to hinder their playing ability. With the starting team consisting of one freshman, three sophomores, and only one senior, Hall appeared to be destined for a mediocre season. This proved to be more of a fallacy than a fact because of the unsurpassed amount of teamwork.

Unfortunately the state tournament didn't prove to be as satisfying as the rest of the season. Though Hall started off with an easy win over Ludlowe, Hand of Madison was a little too tough for the ladies, defeating them by a mere two points.

Next year should be an outstanding one for Hall. With the combination of the experienced coaching by Miss Walling and the returning players of Jennifer Lohneiss, Shelley Clymer, Sue Sebolt, and Kim Mathis their outlook appears excellent.

HOCKEY

The 1979-80 ice hockey season was an up and down one for Hall High School. There were a number of disappointments, such as defeats at the hands of cross-town rival Conard. The Warriors can see many bright spots, however, they defeated a strong Fermi club by a 2-1 margin. This was the first time that Hall accomplished this feat. Other strong performances were a 3-2 victory over a potent Wethersfield team, and a 15-0 shelling of Platt.

One game that seems to highlight the season is the home opener in which the icemen were down 3-1 going into the third period. However, by refusing to be denied, the Warriors tied the score at 3-3 and finally won in sudden-death overtime.

At midseason the Warriors held an impressive record of five wins and three losses, and had strong hopes of qualifying for post-season play. The Hall team had reached its potential and were capable of giving anyone in the league a close game. The talent and motivation were at a high level and the team was surprising many people. To the disappointment of many, a string of injuries and a few unfortunate incidents left the icemen shorthanded. The second half of the season was a struggle, as a number of near victories eluded the Warriors' grasp and denied them a berth in the state playoffs.

Hall's defensive core was anchored by seniors Don Bassette, Eddie Salvador, Jeff McLucas, co-captain Brian Meany, and junior Charlie Mischel. The offensive attack was bolstered by seniors Stan Zyskowsky and Kevin O'Brien, juniors Peter Cunningham, Andy Brown, Frank Portal, and co-captain Peter Haggerty. Sophomores Rich Inglis and Charlie Berl, and Freshman Ricky Cannon also made substantial contributions. Between the posts, Joe Volvovitz, Stephan Strassner, and sophomore Frank Robinson made the saves.

GYMNASTICS

Team unity and depth were two of the major characteristics that brought the 1979-80 girls' gymnastics team to a 11-2 record losing only to the Class LL and Class M state champs.

Practicing six days a week, often for four or five hours at a time, gave the girls a good chance not only to improve their skills but to grow together as a team. Encouraging and helping one another through the learning of tricks, disappointment of a bad day, and the excitement of a job well done all combined to form a strong bond among the team.

Much dedication and hard work on the part of the coaches and the gymnasts proved worthwhile as they placed third in the state meet.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross-Country is a sport that stresses individuality. It is a sport where determination and mental toughness are as important as running ability. This year, co-captains Bryan Hill and Winston Adams and coach Peter Cooperman helped the team to run with the determination of winners though they rarely won.

From the season opener against East Hartford, Hall's major problem, lack of depth, was very apparent.

With only three returning seniors and a team made up of mostly underclassmen, Hall surrendered a close contest. The Warriors bounced back with a double win in a tri-meet against Enfield and Penney, but soon lost their momentum with defeats to Windham and Simsbury.

Against Wethersfield Hill and Adams both turned in their best times of the year on Hall's home course, but fell short of the task by only five points, 26-13. Though plagued by constant setbacks, and finishing the season with losses to Fermi, league champions Manchester, and Conard, the Hall runners never stopped working to improve themselves.

Despite a disappointing 2-7 record there were some bright spots to Hall's cross-country season.

Co-captains Bryan Hill received an honorable mention from the LL League, this year's abundance of underclassmen promises better success in the future, and the graduating seniors; Winston Adams, Bryan Hill, Keith Epstein, Martin DeMaio, and Greg Zeffiro have helped to provide this season with the attitude of hard work and determination necessary for all winners.

WRESTLING

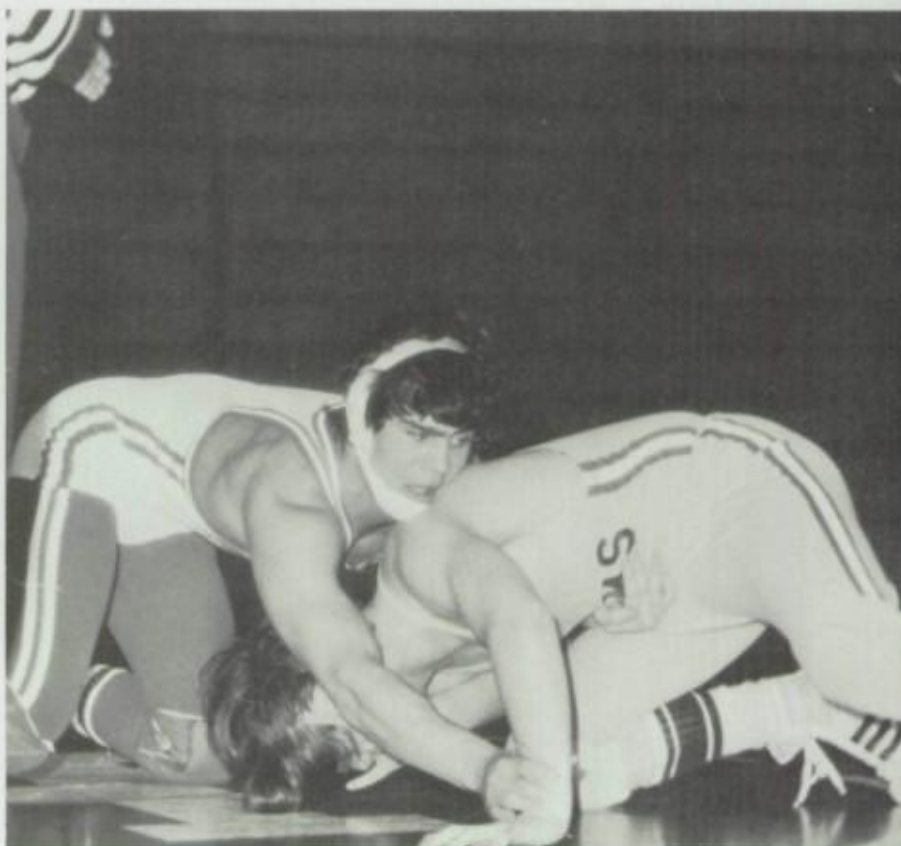

The 1979-80 Wrestling team has no reason to be disappointed with their performance. Their fourth place showing in the state tournament proved their potential. The strong Fermi team won that tournament even though Hall beat them in a dual meet early in the season.

The long season began with the annual dieting the Monday after Thanksgiving. With John Bulmer taking over for Coach Robinson everyone was getting a fresh start. Views were optimistic with scattering of both experience and youth. Captains Daryl Hicks and Winston Adams were ready to go with five other returning lettermen as well as the depth of other experienced upper classmen.

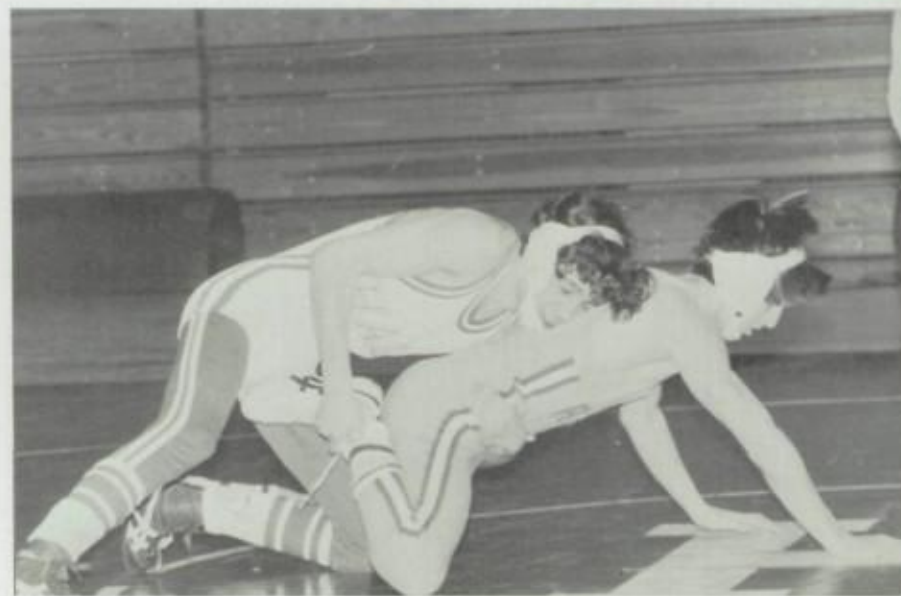

Problems began early with the dislocation of senior Gary Helene's shoulder. He had hoped to return to the mat for their season opener but doctors advised against it. The team took second place in the opener Penney Tournament, seniors Erick Byrd and Mike Gordon won first place along with Daryl Hicks, giving them a good start. Senior Steven Rosenstein replaced Helene in the 114 lb class giving him a starting position. In the home opener Rosenstein had difficulty along with the rest of the team losing one side of a tri-meet to Maloney, while beating Brookfield on the other side. Bulkely was their next victim but the following match was a disaster. Norwich Free Academy blew Hall out of their gym 43-18. Recovering from Norwich they went on to take two straight, beating Bristol Central and Rockville before losing a one point match to Avon.

The first five league matches were successful with senior Glenn Hurlbert wrestling outstanding. Windham was the first league team to beat Hall before they won three more in a row. Senior Jim Mermigos also wrestled while Byrd was hurt. good efforts from junior Dan Waxler and sophomores Tom Giuliano and Joe Adam also helped the team considerably. There were some good points to notice in the disappointing performance at Conard. Senior Rob Mattioda wrestled his best match of the season as he and captain Winston Adams both beat previously undefeated wrestlers.

In the state tournament Mattioda, to the entire state's surprise, took second place along with Hicks while Mike Gordon captured first. These and many other outstanding feats accomplished by the team, including their 12-5 record, showed their ability and dedication

"Yeah, rah rah, class of 80" was heard throughout the school during Spirit week, the week before the annual Hall-Conard game. Enthusiastic chants and cheers were abundant, along with blue and white, braids, and warpaint. All four classes were competing for the title of most spirited by hanging posters and streamers in assigned sections of the school. Spirit buttons were on the market, as well as blue feathers and spirit kits. By the end of the week, the entire school was riled up and ready to show their support for the football team. The cheerleaders did an exceptional job in leading the students. After the class songs were sung and the cheers died down, the students left the gym, all set to root for Hall at The Game.

Despite all the little "spats" all the disagreements, and all the traumatic break-ups that are so common in high school love affairs, there have been certain couples that over the past three years have maintained a special relationship. Going out on weekends, holding hands in the corridors and talking for great lengths on the telephone are all a part of this relationship. Although nothing can be predicted for the future, and although these relationships have their ups and downs, they provide an enjoyable diversion for those involved.

We'll all have different memories of Hall, but the one thing that stands out in everyone's mind is the image of the friends that we've found at Hall. The golden days spent throwing a frisbee around the oval (or in the corridors): congregating during passing-time and blocking traffic: beach weekend, the un-official senior skip-day to go to the shore: weekend plans made on Friday afternoon running to get the bus: friends we lost, and new ones we made: all are a part, maybe the most important part, of the great experiment of high school.

The decline of social barriers and the adoption of a more relaxed attitude toward the stereotyped sex roles are both present in our society and at Hall. Males and females have become liberated and now feel free to venture into courses which were previously the domain of one sex only. Male students have taken a turn and headed for the kitchens, while female students have enrolled in drafting and shop classes. Though many of the guys are prompted to take cooking because of their fondness for eating rather than by a desire to become gourmet chefs, both they and their female counterparts in shop are learning a practical and enjoyable skill which prepares them for life on their own. Both male and female students who dare to reverse roles are exposed to new situations that considerably expand their horizons.

It was "Another Openin' of Another Show" on Dec. 1, when the Pops and Jazz fall show kicked off another year of playing, dancing and singing in the inimitable Hall style. This show had a tingle of anticipation to it as the first performance by this year's Eurotour group, and a special purpose as a fundraiser for the P.T.O. Scholarship Fund. As always, the packed audience went out singing and looking forward to the spring show.

Shark! Shark!

Of all the disasters, man-made and natural, that befell us this year, the most memorable was the day it rained. After a grey morning it started pouring in the afternoon and didn't really stop for three hours, but the most impressive thing was the flooding that took place all over town, including in the oval behind the school and in the corridors inside the school as well. Unfortunately, things were pretty much back to normal the next morning (except for a few cars with six inches of mud on the floor) and school went on as usual.

The Amateur Night was performed on the evening of October 27 for a near capacity crowd. The musical, comic, and other eccentric talents of around twentyfive students were hosted by senior Masters of Ceremonies, Bruce Raisner and Dan Kahn. As well as giving a financial boost for the class of 80, Amateur Night was a fine kick-off for the many major Hall High productions during the year.

Some of the highlights of the show were the vocal solos of Karen Webber and Julie Gister, Professor Brahm Fleish's analysis of the human race, the Unlikely Hoods — a barbershop quartet, and an all-out stuntman brawl between the emcees.

A special thanks from all in the show for the advisor-director, Janet Armentano.

Dances are still abundant at Hall, and on many weekends the cafeteria is filled with students who stamp to the rhythm and clap to the beat of one of the area's many rock bands.

Though there were a number of dances in the fall, the two most popular and unusual were the Harvest Dance and the Homecoming dance.

The Harvest Dance took on a new twist this year when, in honor of the season, it became a masquerade ball. A discount admission was offered to costumed students who let their imagination run wild and appeared as everything from the statue of Liberty to Dr. Dunn.

The silly costumes of that night were exchanged for more sophisticated attire (suits and ties or evening gowns) as couples flocked to the Homecoming dance on Thanksgiving night. The music, the elegant costumes of the dancers and the presence of old friends and alumni home for the holiday all added to the exciting occasion.

The fall production of Only in America was a turning point for three reasons. It was the first attempt by director Michael Jones to present a serious play which dealt with the subject of racial prejudice, but despite the sombre theme, through the writings of Harry Golden (a real person) the subject was treated in a witty and thoughtful manner.

Only in America was also the first play with an integrated cast to be staged at Hall. It gave black students their first opportunity to participate in Hall's theatrical productions.

Finally, the fall play was the first one to involve ninth graders since their entry into the mainstream at Hall. They proved to be a little noisy, but convenient for the many children's parts.

Along with the turning point of the decade, trends also underwent turning points of their own. Unique to our class was a greater appreciation of individualism than in previous years. Anything and everything went! Whether it was new styles of clothing, brand names or pastimes, the class of '80 truly initiated numerous trends.

1980's mode of dress differed from preceding years in its extensive variety. Styles ranged from old, faded jeans and overalls, to khakis and pullover sweaters, to blazers and kilts.

Locker decorating was more predominant (both inside and out) and a relatively new fad of painting the soccer kickboard was introduced.

Although our fads have always been one of our more serious passions, undoubtedly in later years we will look back at these pages and laugh at how much styles have changed.

Whether a student lives close enough to walk or must find transportation, the problem of getting to school in the morning is increased by a lack of motivation and a necessity to find a quick way to arrive in first period class before the teacher notices the empty chair. If one's home is conveniently located near the school, the student is able to come and go more easily. However, the hike to Hall is not as enjoyable when the student is tired or loaded down with books. Similarly, a pouring rainstorm or a chilling blizzard easily dampens one's enthusiasm for the walk and makes the idea of staying in bed for the day even more appealing.

Students who take the bus are as apt to prolong the eventual departure from their warm blankets as those who walk. The dread of missing the bus prompts the bus student to gobble down a quick breakfast and dash to the bus stop. A miscalculation in time or an unknown breakdown often occurs, and the student is forced to stand for long periods of time, cursing the bus driver and blocking out the temptation to turn around and go back home. Though most students are eventually picked up by the bus, a lone straggler is sometimes seen running down the road flapping his arms as the bus rumbles away. In order to get to school, the student usually hitches a ride or begs for the family car. The abundance of automobiles in the student parking lot and the number of students who stand on the roadside with their thumbs extended prove that these means of transportation are not uncommon. Eventually all students arrive in school, though many come in a little late.

Depending on their interests and friends, Hall students have a wide variety of hangouts, both in school and out. The front of the school is a perennial favorite, as are the hallways, despite no loitering rules. For the serious-minded there's always the library, although to get studying done is often difficult. On the weekends, students often congregate at Friendly's before or after a special event.

Hall students, like everyone else, are perpetually faced with a shortage of cash. For many of us, the answer lies in a part-time job. Grocery stores are favorites, along with Friendly's and Papa Gino's in Bishop's Corner. Clothing stores are nice because they usually give discounts and office work is easy but boring and hard to find. By far the best jobs are the ones where a student can exercise his own interests and make money besides. Whatever the type of work, the drudgery is more than made up for when payday rolls around and the student gets his hands on some good, cold cash.

Despite treacherous exams, gruelling workouts in the gym, intense confrontations with teachers, and heavy traffic in the corridors, Hall students can always look forward to that special time each day when they can escape into a world of luxury. The cafeteria at Hall is a student's fantasy land. Upon entering, a student is overwhelmed by the sight of the elegant dining facilities and the appetizing delicacies displayed. A student joins the line of eager classmates, tilts his head back, and breathes deeply, absorbing the tantalizing smells that drift through the air. He examines the victuals displayed before him and arranges his nine course meal on his tray. The drooling pupil rushes towards the cashier in anticipation of what is to come. He makes his way through the spacious room towards the elegant table where his dining partners are seated. He sinks into the plush green chair, only to find that the stuffing in his seat is really the remains of the last diner's meal. Gently tucking his napkin into the collar of his shirt, the hungry student picks up his utensils and begins to consume the mouthwatering delicacies spread before him. The meal is ended all too soon. Leaving a generous tip on the table for the maitre de (Curly Mae), he pats the corners of his mouth with his napkin and rises from the table. He strolls towards the exit, wondering why it is taking the bus boy such a long time to clear the dishes. As he reaches the door, he sees Curly Mae bolting towards him. Instead of the grateful kiss that he expects, he is met with harsh words and a tug on the arm as she drags him back to clean his table. The humiliated student repentantly deposits his tray on the counter and slithers away with his head held low. Only a forgiving kiss from Curly Mae will cure his deep depression.

For some of us, it started in September, but for most it began around April when the air started getting warm and the classrooms were prison cells in the spring sunshine. It, of course, is senior slump, that feeling that nothing matters anymore, least of all high school, and the intense desire to get away from books and papers and just bask in the warmth of knowing that school will soon be out forever. The unfortunate few who were stuck inside often looked like convicts or biological specimens, but once out in the fresh air, they looked a lot better.

The 1970's Review

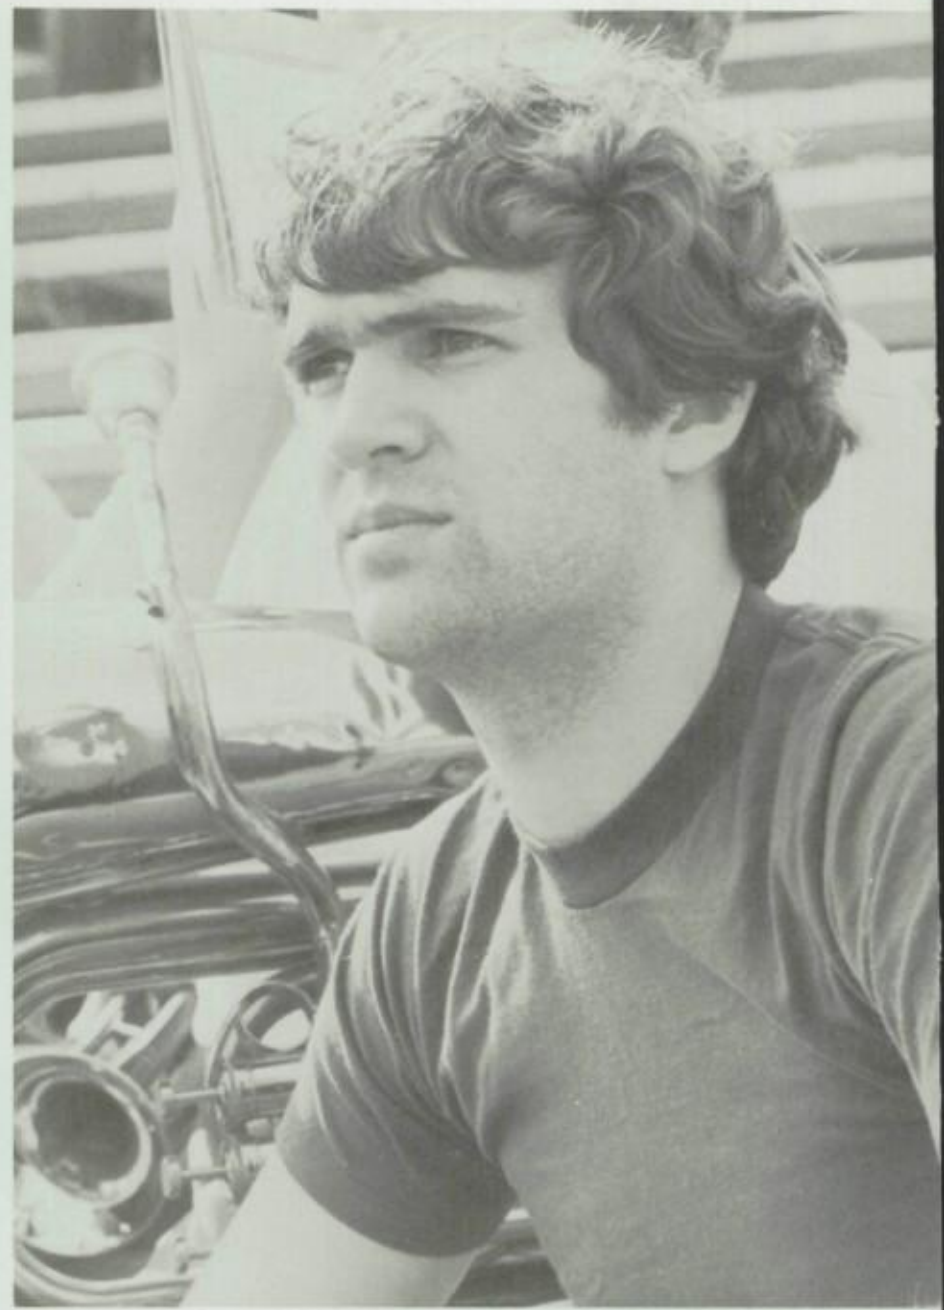

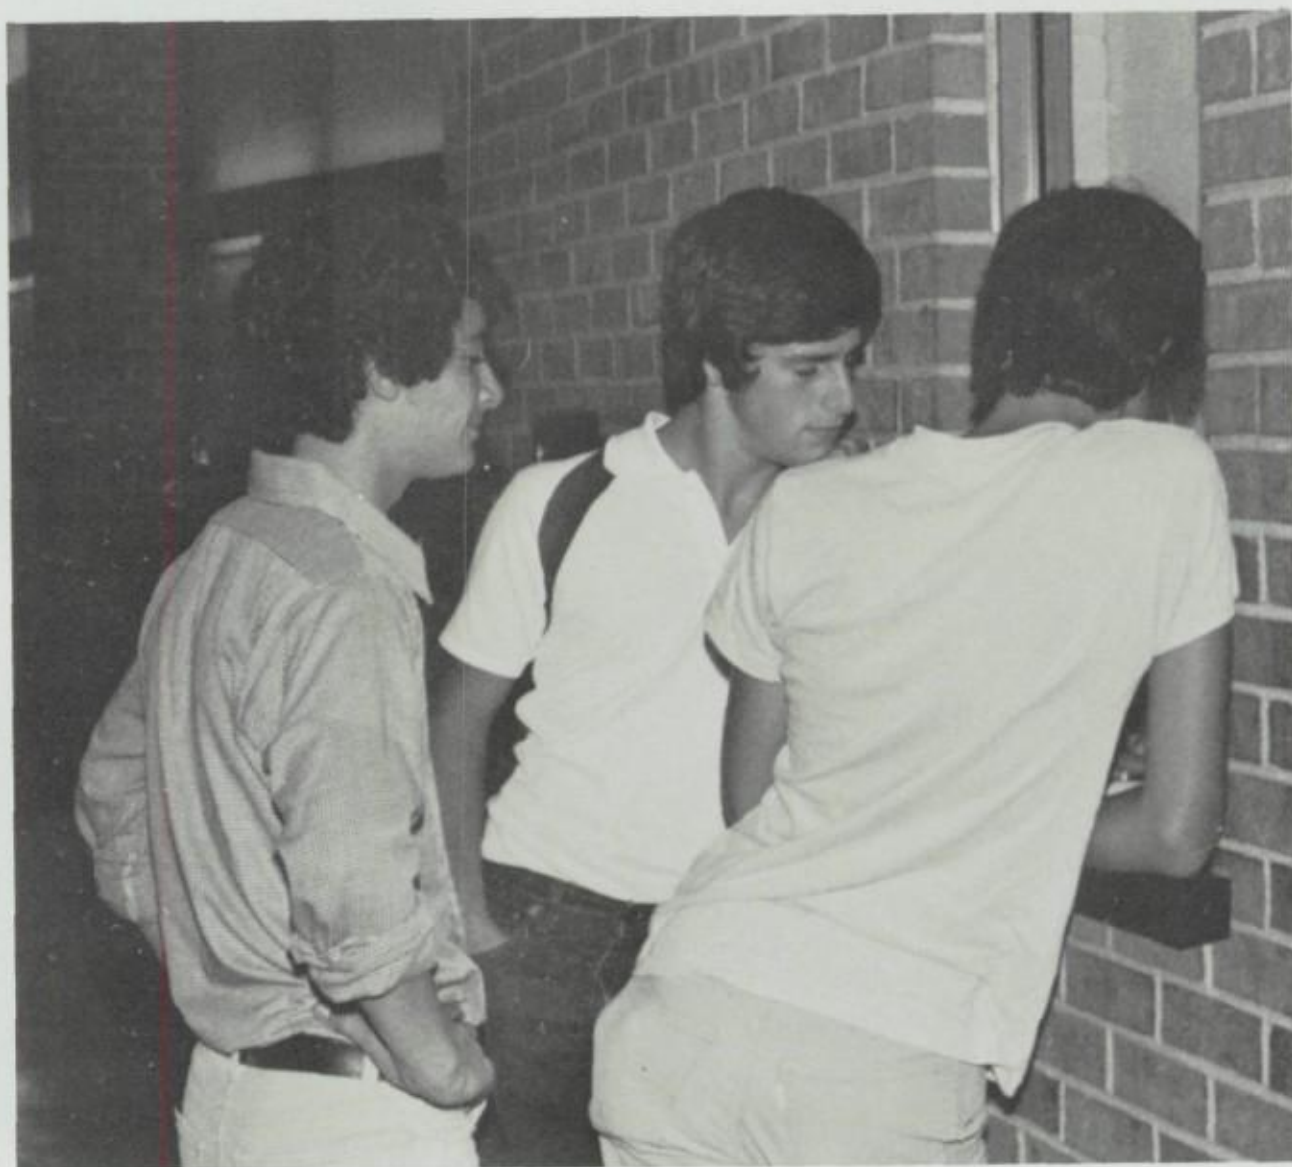

Since we are graduating (or escaping, depending on your point of view) in a decade year, it seems natural to look back on the 1970's, the decade that took most of us from second grade to our present state.

It started in an atmosphere left over from the 60's, Vietnam, student protests, rock festivals, and Nixon, but most of us were still learning to multiply, spell and write. We only knew of the draft as something affecting our older brothers. Most of us didn't even know who or what we were.

Then came the mid-seventies. As we struggled with the first pangs of adolescence, the country went through Watergate, detente, Arab-Israeli war and a nostalgia craze. Having conquered the mess-tables, we went on to try our hand at current events, history, science and self-education. We were beginning to look around and wake up a bit to the joy and terror of adult life, but for the most part we stayed with our comfortable junior-high mentality.

Gradually, the late seventies materialized. The country (and we as well) went through Jimmy Carter, punk rock, A Chorus Line, and disco-mania. We sat around in gas lines, and luckily weren't sitting around when the Civic Center roof collapsed. Meanwhile on the home front we leaped into a semblance of adulthood, like swimmers leaping out of the water pursued by the sharks of career goals and future planning, not to mention college applications.

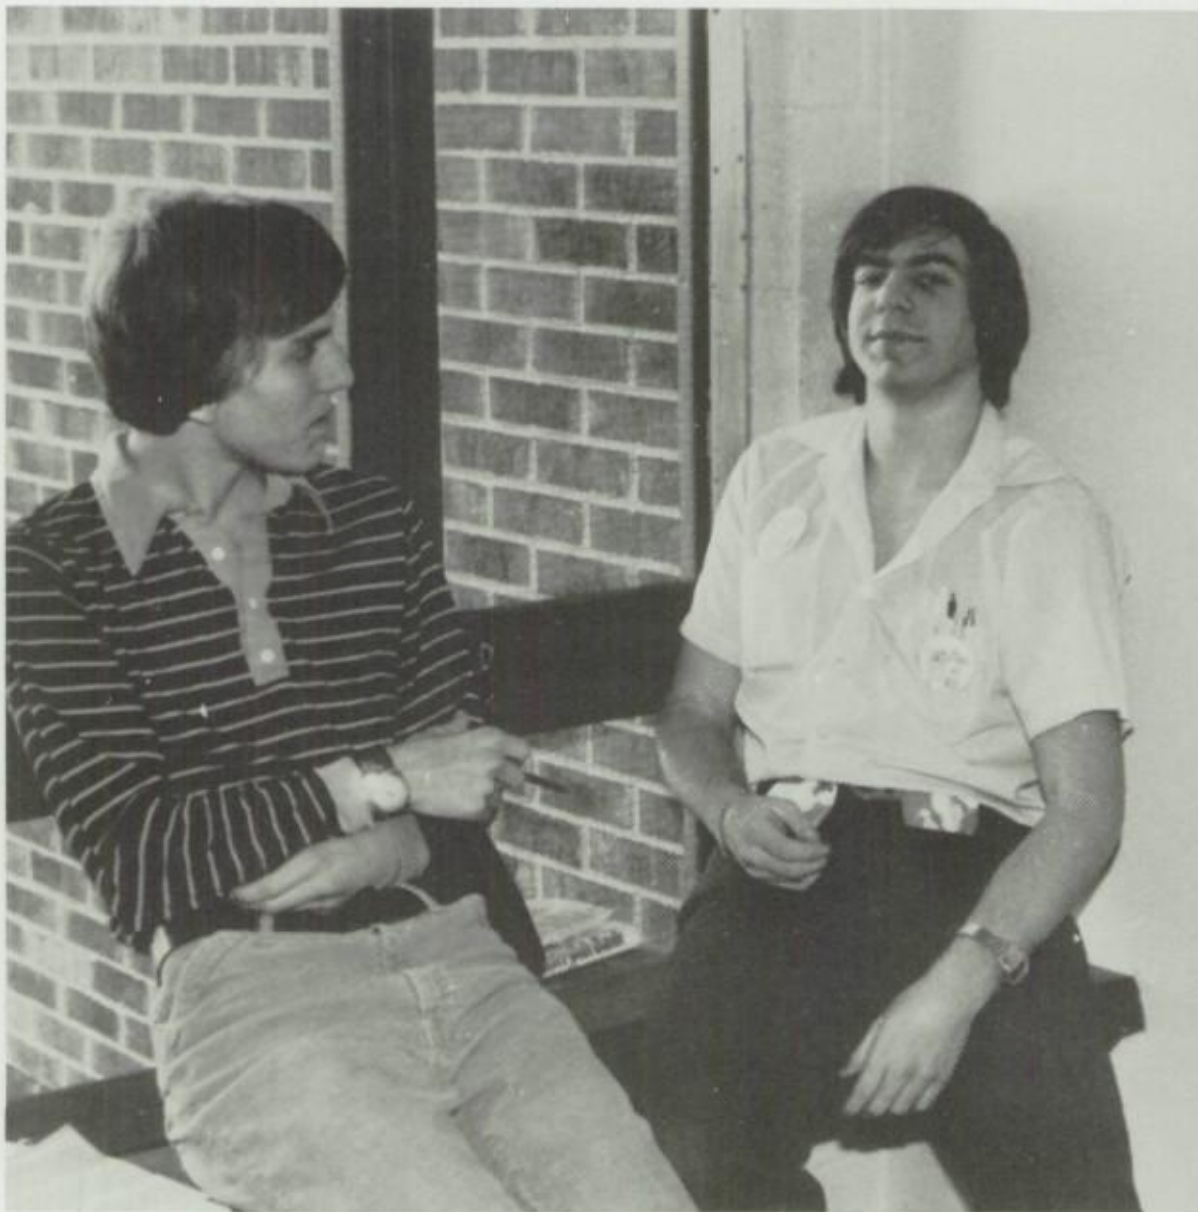

So here we are, in 1980. If we look a little confused it's because we are. Growing up is never easy, and the seventies were a hard time to start. The speed of change outside has accentuated the changes within us, but on the whole, we've done fairly well. The turn of a decade makes us think back a little more pensively, a bit more nostalgically, but it would be the same in any year. We are leaving something important, something overwhelming. Good or bad, it has affected us all and we deserve credit for having survived it and in the end for having profited by it. Here's to the seventies, now lets pick something new.

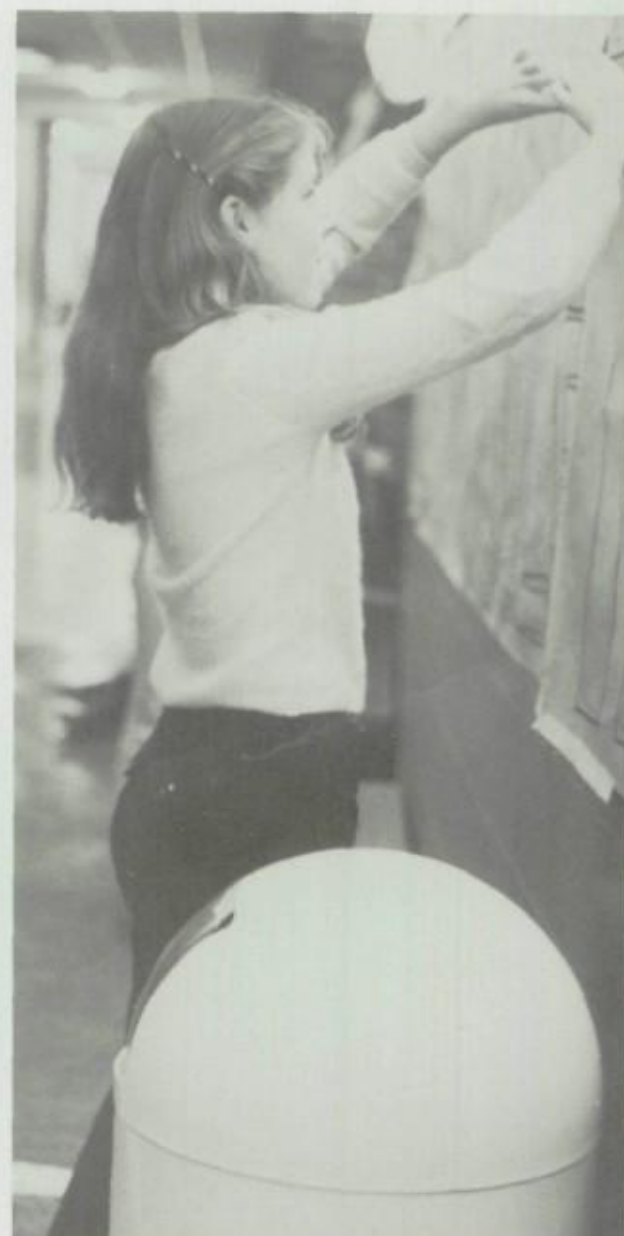

TURNING POINT

Looking back on this year, it's hard to put everything into perspective. Although we were the undisputed bosses of the school, we looked ahead to uncertainty in the world outside Hall. The patterns of life that make up high school will all change after June 19th and this group of four hundred thirty people will change from a class to an undefinable group. We'll slowly spread out, and eventually leave Hall behind.

TURNING POINT

But what was Hall while we were here? It was everything we made it, plain and simple. It was stimulating, it was fun, it was absolute torture. It was concerts, dances, shows, meetings, games, and sometimes a few classes or exams. Most important, though, it was people. Friends, enemies, acquaintances, teachers and teammates. It was a community, sometimes divided, sometimes cooperative. Occasionally, people say, "High school's nothing, wait till you're out in the real world," but for three years this place, these people, were the real world for all of us.

TURNING POINT

And what will we have when we leave? Besides that all-important piece of paper, we will have everything that it represents: some form of education, a chance at a job or more education, and those intangible things that happened to us here at Hall High. We started as children with nothing more in common than age and where we lived. We went through junior high, and slowly, painfully, grew. We came to Hall and discovered that we have a lot in common and a lot to give, but the one thing that holds us together most is the school itself. The sharing of experiences here has produced a group that has influence and opinions. We came as four hundred thirty individuals and left as one group: the Class of '80.

Our sincere congratulations and best wishes to the class of 1980.
May all your dreams come true.
